

The Day Of Love

Love has many faces. It manifests at different times in different ways. In your relation with your child, Love manifests as affection. Allow yourself to be affected by your child's fears, complex insecurities and frustrations. Reach out with understanding.

Sri Amma's Message

Love has many faces. It manifests at different times in different ways. In your relation with your child, Love manifests as affection. Allow yourself to be affected by your child's fears, complex insecurities and frustrations. Reach out with understanding.

In spousal relationship, love is passion and respect; being a friend and staying together through rough weather.

Love is providing and giving for the family. Love becomes sensitivity and awareness of another's needs. At work, love manifests as commitment and passion for excellence.

For a friend, love means right counsel in rough times and playfulness during easy times.

For the Nation, love is to create wealth through integrity.

In life, love comes through as courage and acceptance. Tear down the walls of fear and allow every experience to flow over you; just as the waters do over the sands.

Life is complete only when you nurture love in all its forms. All who complain against you are heaven's reminders asking you to scale greater heights of love.
